

From Oblivion to Memory

One-Page Public Site Spec

Scope: This is a light documentation snapshot based on publicly visible pages and search snippets available on March 27, 2026. It summarizes the apparent structure and front-end layout; it is not a full technical audit.
1. Purpose and positioning • Mission-driven public history and memory site. • Appears centered on the Asinara history project and the recovery of descendants' Main stories. • Balances four goals: historical interpretation, organizational identity, public participation, and fundraising. 2. Observed information architecture • Home (/asinara/) • About Us (/asinara/aboutus.html) • Our Ancestors • News • How to Join • Flyer (PDF) • Donate • Campaign progress / "see our progress"	3. Page-level layout wireframe
	Logo / site name + primary navigation
	Hero or feature banner / lead visual area
	Main story block (history / mission / "what we know")
	Secondary content blocks (news, ancestors, participation)
	Call to action band (Donate + progress link)
	Footer (supporting links / contact / credits)
	4. Design read • Conventional informational nonprofit layout with a clear top navigation and strong call-to-action path. • Likely uses content teasers and "read more" patterns rather than deep application logic on the public side. • The design emphasis appears to be narrative first, donation/support second.

Recommended next documentation step: capture each public page separately (Home, About Us, News, Progress, Donate) and turn this snapshot into a fuller page inventory with live screenshots and page-by-page notes.
